Our Libraries

National Museums Scotland welcomes researchers, students and visitors to consult the library collections for research and reference.

Research Library

Our largest library is on level 3 of the National Museum of Scotland, with 12 study spaces. There is wheelchair access to the library via a lift.

The Library contains 30,000 items which visitors can browse, plus a display of 80 of our most regularly used periodical titles. This collection has been selected to support research and learning and assist visitors to further understand the Museum's object collections and related activities.

The remainder of the collection is in storage within the building and can be retrieved on request. Collection of items from storage areas is carried out at 11:00 and 14:00 each day.

National War Museum Scotland Library

The library collection at the National War Museum Scotland located in Edinburgh Castle concentrates on the Scottish experience of war and military service from 1660 to the present day.

Our Collections

Founded 230 years ago with its roots in the collections of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland, the library collection now consists of over 300,000 volumes, embracing both modern research material and items up to 500 years old. Our periodicals collection comprises over 400 titles, including e-journals.

The collection reflects the strengths and variety of the Museum's collections and research interests in the following themes:

- Archaeology
- Scottish history and culture
- World-wide decorative and applied arts
- Natural sciences
- History of science and technology
- World cultures
- Scottish military history
- Museology

Please check the online library catalogue for more details of our holdings in these subject areas and their availability. The catalogue also has finding lists for our special collections and archives and links to e-resources.

Special Collections and Archives

Manuscript Collections

The major collections include the original correspondence, notes and journals of nationally renowned natural historians William Jardine, J.A. Harvie-Brown and William Spiers Bruce.

Scottish history and archaeology are represented by a varied collection including the letters of William Smellie; the journals of Robert Riddell; drawings by James Drummond and Alexander Archer; and the scrapbook of Sir Daniel Wilson.

Archives

The library holds the National Museums Scotland archives which includes museum registers, correspondence, scrapbooks, posters, original plans, illustrations, photographs and ephemera.

The historical archives of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland are also in the care of the Library.
